Re-Opening Update

The Board continues to be very hopeful that our reopening plans for the week of January 17 will stay in place. However, due to continuing COVID concerns, we have moved up our next board Meeting to January 4 and we will reassess at that time. See the January 10th Alert for updates.

Letter to the Editor

Thank you for recognizing my score of 480 in the Bulletin's It's Your Call contest. Although you said I was the only Canadian to be included, in fact there were two others from BC – Michael Dimich and Dennis Lee. The January questions are really tough: no repeat expected!

No More Monday Night 999er Game

Due to low turnout, the Monday night 999er game experiment has been declared a non-starter, and this game has been cancelled, effective immediately.

Quickie

Keep the bidding simple. If you have a fit for partner's major, always raise.

Congratulations to

Kathy Russell who placed 34th in C out of 1046 players in the NABC fall robot individual. Other local players who did well were, in no particular order: John Gilbert, Mark Obermeyer, Neil Jeffrey, Andy Martinek, and Tim Porter.

Christmas Games

Contributed by Liz McDowell

Our annual Christmas party on December 11 was held on BBO. This is the second year that we have been unable to participate at our home club. We truly miss seeing our friends in person and sharing all the festivities that have traditionally been part of the festive season. To all our players who joined us to play from home, it was great to be able at least, to wish you a Merry Christmas. Special thanks to our wonderful directors for giving us the opportunity to play on BBO - not just at our party, but for all of 2021.

Congratulations to the following players who placed first or second in the overalls. Your prize will arrive by mail soon from our special treasurer Bev Pope.

Opportunities on the Volunteer Management Team

Contributed by Jim Dalgliesh, Club Manager

The club's management team is responsible for the day-to-day operation of our club and is accountable to the board of directors. The team is comprised of 11 individuals with specific areas of responsibility and meets monthly (currently by Zoom) when there are agenda items warranting a meeting. Currently, there are two vacancies that need to be filled.

- The Hospitality Lead is responsible for arranging housekeeping services, refreshments for players, and the purchase of other consumables as required. The Hospitality Lead works with other volunteers, who are responsible for purchasing cookies, coffee, tea, milk, etc. He or she provides overall co-ordination of the volunteers in this area.
- The Special Events Lead is responsible for developing an annual special events calendar for the year. This encompasses the Christmas events, Valentines' game, and other events throughout the year. He or she appoints a convenor for each special event, someone who will work with the special events lead as needed to arrange for food, snacks, etc. The special events lead will also be involved in helping organize prizes as appropriate for certain events.

For more information, please contact Jim Dalglish, Club Manager.

Bidding for Intermediate Players, Part 1

This course and its separately-enrolled continuation, Part 2, focus on Standard American bidding. Opening bids, responses, and rebids will be briefly reviewed. Topics covered in more detail will be forcing and non-forcing bids, competitive bidding, doubles, and balancing. Each lesson will conclude with some hands illustrating the lesson's topics, for practice in bidding and play. A few topics regarding play and defence will also be included, but the main goal of the course is to make attendees comfortable and confident with standard bidding conventions. Regular partners may find it advantageous to attend as a pair.

Level: Intermediate

Instructor: Neil Jeffrey

Mode: Face-to-Face

Date: Tuesdays from 7:00 pm until 9:30 pm, January 19, 25, February 1, & 8

Fee: $70 for members/ $80 for non-members (includes handouts and HST)

THESE DATES MAY CHANGE IF THE CLUB'S RE-OPENING HAS TO BE POSTPONED.

I wrote last week's blurb in the Barbados heat and I may have been distracted. Or something. I overlooked a fine defensive play that South might have made to set the 3NT contract. Several nasty recipients of the blurb pointed this play out to me.

North led the ♥6 and South found himself on lead with the queen. If South had thought, "Why did West duck the heart lead", he might have found the killing defense.

West had advertised a heart stopper in the auction - yet he didn't take it at Trick 1 even though he would then have a sure double stopper in hearts. A clever South player might infer that West needed to keep the heart ace in his hand as a later entry.

There is only one way to knock that heart entry out of West's hand - a small heart lead at Trick 2 would simply be ducked around to dummy. But South can be sure to defeat the contract with the lead of the ♥K at Trick 2.

West's ace will be gone before he has the chance to unblock the top spades from the dummy. Perhaps if I write my blurb before I pour the first daiquiri of the day, I won't miss this kind of play.

 Don't drink and write bridge columns.

Dear David

Unblock

The word “unblock” means “get out of the way”. For example, you lead the king from KQJ109 and partner has A2. If partner plays the 2 under the king, he will then be forced to win the next trick with his ace and may not be able to get back to your hand. So, partner should “unblock” by winning the ace right away and leading the 2 back for you to run the entire suit. There is another “expert” way to unblock.

	N North ♠ 98 ♥ 64 ♦ 102 ♣ AKQJ1092	W N E S 1♥ 2♣ P P P 3NT P P P
	W West ♠ AQJ2 ♥ KQ1098 ♦ Q43 ♣ 3	E East ♠ 743 ♥ J7 ♦ AJ976 ♣ 865
	S South ♠ K1065 ♥ A532 ♦ K85 ♣ 74	3NT S NS: 0 EW: 0

The first trick against 3NT is ♥K, 4, 7, 2. It's easy looking at all four hands, but what if South has the ♥J? If you switch to any other suit, declarer may make at least nine tricks. The answer is to lead the ♥Q at Trick 1! That asks partner to drop the ♥J if he has it, or otherwise give count in the suit. From that point onwards, the best declarer can do is eight tricks against best defense. It should occur to you that the queen is a strange lead when you are looking at the jack, so it should be easy to remember what your responsibility should be. You need at least KQ10xx to make this lead. This method also works if you lead the jack from QJ9xx, asking partner to unblock the 10.

Here is another hand from the same game that explores a different use for this treatment.

	N North ♠ 42 ♥ K753 ♦ KJ942 ♣ 86	W N E S P P 1♥ 1♠ 2♣ P 2NT P 3NT P P P
	W West ♠ K85 ♥ 4 ♦ 873 ♣ AKJ943	E East ♠ A107 ♥ AQJ106 ♦ 105 ♣ 1052
	S South ♠ QJ963 ♥ 982 ♦ AQ6 ♣ Q7	3NT E NS: 0 EW: 0

Many would lead fourth-best spade, immediately giving declarer at least 10 tricks. Some would lead the ♠Q and be unclear as to whether they should continue the suit if they regained the lead. That information does not matter on this particular layout, but it may be important on a different hand where South has a choice between continuing the spade attack or switching to a different suit. Lead the ♠J, and when partner fails to drop the ten under your jack, you know to switch.

1. RKCB 1430 - 0 or 3 keycards

You, South, are the declarer in six hearts. West leads the ♠K. Plan the play.

SOLUTION

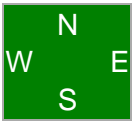

Here's the obvious line of attack. Draw two rounds of trump and cash the ace and king of clubs. Then ruff dummy's remaining club loser (the ♣10) in your hand. If there is still a trump at large, ruff with your ♥A to be on the safe side.

It sounds like a good plan, with the odds of success about 97%. Not too shabby. But what about a plan with a 100% chance of success?

For this hand, you might notice that it's more helpful to count dummy's losers than those in your hand, since that way it's easy to see that you need to worry only about a spade loser and a club loser. And given the opening lead, you are now in a position to set up a spade winner that will take care of your club loser.

So, take the ♠K with your ♠A and then draw trump until all outstanding trumps have been extracted (at most four rounds). Then play the ♠J. The opponents will have no choice but to take this trick, because if they don't, they will hand you the contract. Whoever wins this spade trick (almost certainly West) has to give you back the lead. Now you can discard dummy's losing club (the ♣10) on the established spades winner (the ♠10) in your hand.

Here is the full deal.

♠ K Q 9 7 4 ♥ 9 5 3 ♦ Q 8 7 5 ♣ 7		♠ J 6 ♥ K Q J 10 8 7 ♦ 6 4 ♣ A K 10 ♠ 8 3 ♥ 4 ♦ 10 3 2 ♣ Q J 9 8 6 5 4 ♠ A 10 5 2 ♥ A 6 2 ♦ A K J 9 ♣ 3 2

As you can see, West has only one club. If you had chosen the obvious line of play (the one we looked at first), West would have ruffed your ♣K and then cashed a winning spade, putting you down. A 1-7 split is rare, but it happens about 3% of the time. Here's a tip: you should always choose the 100% line of play.

The Language of Bridge

"The English like to sprinkle their conversation and writing with French expressions: they think the inclusion of a bon mot or two adds a certain je ne sais quoi. Of course, it can be overdone. To write, 'He exhibited his usual savoir-faire and sang-froid by eliminating clubs en route to a coup de grâce in spades' might be considered de trop.

"What about French phrases that apply to bridge? Here are a couple you should definitely avoid: cri du coeur is not a bid in hearts; and force majeure does not date back to the days when the French played strong twos in hearts and spades. Nor is carte blanche French for a Yarborough, although, confusingly, the Italians do say mano bianco (white hand) when they have a Yarborough. The Chinese do something similar, saying 'white skin'.

"Do the French have any interesting bridge expressions? Yes, they do. There is en passant, but that has come to us from chess. It happens (in bridge) when you play a card through a defender who has a winning trump. If he ruffs, you discard a loser and your last trump is promoted; if he doesn't ruff, then you make your otherwise-losing trump.

"When the French are in a doubled contract, they say jouer batonné (under the cosh?). Instead of our rather clumsy 'ruff with your natural trump trick', they say couper avec son argent. I also like passee Blanche-Neige (a Snow White pass) where you pass the opponents in a failing contract in the hope that partner will reopen with a double.

"Where an English player might accuse his (male) partner of hogging the contracts, a Frenchman would show his chauvinistic side and say, 'Tu joues en mixte?'. I say chauvinistic, but maybe they are right. Maybe men do play more than their share of contracts when partnering women. We have a right to know. I will investigate and get back to you.

"I remember being surprised when I learned that the word 'finesse' was not borrowed from the French; they say impasse (as do the Germans, the Norwegians, and many others). What an inappropriate word to use, it sounds like a cul de sac. But their word for a 'ruffing finesse' is expanse. I like it.

"The most puzzling of French expressions is their phrase for a phantom sacrifice – crème renversée. My first thought was that this might be their equivalent of spilt milk, but no, the literal translation of crème renversée is cream caramel. I am tempted to follow the French on this one; the next time my partner makes an unsuccessful sacrifice I will describe it as a rhubarb crumble and him as a gooseberry fool."
